

A BUSINESS TRIP IN YOUR OWN BACKYARD

Delightful or dreadful? If you're like most business travelers, you're likely to feel a little of both when you're travelling to a business meeting, corporate event or conference.

According to a 2015 Harvard Business Review article, travelling for business can lead to stress symptoms that ultimately impairs job performance—the exact opposite outcome you want when you and your brain needs to be performing at maximum output.

So how do we make it better? How can we create a business meeting or corporate event where everyone on your team, including the one managing the budget, is excited for the event?

It starts with choosing the right partner.

You need a partner that is committed to working with you to see your event take off, to create customized, personalized business experiences you'll still want to write home about.

At the Calgary TELUS Convention Centre, you'll create an experience from the comfort of your own city, no travel side effects involved. From the latest in audio-visual delivery with our onsite partner FMAV, to a wide selection of food and beverage options with our catering partners at Calgary Marriott Downtown, craft an event that matters to you and your associates.

Why travel to another destination when everything is here in your own downtown? Deliver an unparalleled event experience in a space that provides you and your associates with the atmosphere needed to make great things happen. Enjoy the convenience of being downtown on Stephen Avenue, where you can work hard while taking advantage of local restaurants and shopping opportunities without the hassle of Duty Free or security check-ins.

Relax and settle in, knowing that all your business needs are ready and available for you during your next local business trip.
